Piedmont Police Officer Tyler Petit serves final shift in Piedmont today

By Jay Russell

Piedmont Police Officer Tyler Petit will have his final shift with the Piedmont Police Department (PPD) today, September 30, as he prepares to transfer to the Brentwood Police Department. Petit has worked for more than eight years keeping the city safe. He served as a department ambassador through many outreach programs, served as a representative on the Police & Fire Pension board, and was Vice President/ Treasurer of the Piedmont Police Officers Association.

Petit is leaving Piedmont to serve and protect the community

Piedmonters come out in droves for 28th annual Harvest Festival

By Jake Lannon

Hundreds of Piedmont residents came out this past Sunday, September 27, to enjoy the city's 28th annual Harvest Festival, with food trucks, farmers' markets, live music, games, and fun competitions.

A crowd favorite was the Watermelon Eating Contest, which drew participants from all age groups. Crowds gathered around to watch kids as young as one and adults eat watermelon as fast as possible. The winners received a watermelon-themed bucket hat to display their success.

Candidates' Q & A – City Council Week 5

By Jake Lannon

Each election cycle, the Piedmont Post provides extensive coverage of each candidate to help residents make informed voting decisions.

For this year's race, the Post will send one question every week to the candidates running for City Council until election day. The five City Council candidates vying for three open seats received the question on Tuesday, September 22, and were asked to reply in 200 words.

Week 5 question:

Piedmont's state-approved Housing Element commits the city to plan for 587 new homes by 2031, 257 of them affordable to lower-income households. The largest single project is in Moraga Canyon, where the city is now choosing a developer to build at least 132 units, including at least 60 affordable units, on city-owned land. The next council is expected to approve that developer agreement. What would you need to see in it before voting yes?

Tom Ramsey
Incumbent
(vote4tomramsey.com)

Before voting "yes" on the developer agreement, I would need to see a clear commitment to the vision our community developed through numerous public workshops, commission reviews, and formal hearings. The Request for Qualifications (RFQ) sets the criteria for selecting a development partner. The chosen developer must demonstrate experience, financial capacity, and the ability to deliver a quality project consistent with the Moraga Canyon Specific Plan (MCSP), including mixed-income housing, infrastructure, and community amenities.

Most importantly, the agreement must address the concerns I heard most often from Piedmont residents throughout the public

Coffee, Cops and Cars drives community forward

By Jay Russell

The Piedmont Police Department hosted its eighth annual Car Show on Saturday, September 26, out front of the police station and also along Moraga and Highland Avenues. Event organizer and co-founder Officer Tyler Petit shepherded his last big community outreach event in his Piedmont Police blues, as he will turn in his uniform on Wednesday, September 30.

For Petit, this event marked a victory lap; the event he spearheaded along with Sergeant Steve Dewarns in 2018 has quickly turned into a must attend event for local car enthusiasts.

The coffee was hot and delicious, getting patrons' engines revving in the 7 a.m. hour while the chrome was still heating up.

Seemingly the entire police force was on hand, with uniformed officers on the street shaking hands and answering questions along with officers in street clothes there to support the community event whether on the clock or not.

Measure GG raises badly needed funds

Editor,

I'm writing in support of Measure GG. Raising the city's transfer tax to be more in line with our neighboring cities of Oakland and Berkeley is a reasonable way to raise the funds necessary to fund city services and projects.

As a long-serving member and current Chair of the Parks Commission, I successfully advocated for the City of Piedmont to complete a parks master plan. The plan's conclusions are pretty clear: we're loving our parks too much, and there is a real need for infrastructure replacements, improvements, and ongoing maintenance to keep our parks welcoming, functional, and sustainable. Park pathways and irrigation systems, in some cases decades old, need priority replacement. Steep slopes in Piedmont and Dracena Parks need erosion mitigation. Costs for all incremental improvements, including ADA upgrades and the replacement of play structures, continue to rise.

Measure GG raises badly needed funds, which can help address these needs over time without adding an annual tax burden to city residents. Please join me in supporting Measure GG.

Collecting photos for Where in the World

For 28 years, Piedmont residents have made sure their travels are well documented, with photos of family members reading the Piedmont Post in far-off places throughout the world, and some nearby.

The Post invites families to send photos with the Post from near and far for publication in Where in the World Are We on the back page of the paper. With people able to travel once again, there is no better time to have your photo in the Post.

Send photos as .jpg files to: news@piedmont-post.com, and be sure to include a brief description of the location where the photo was taken.

The Question Man

By Jay Russell

QUESTION: What was your first car and what do you remember about it?

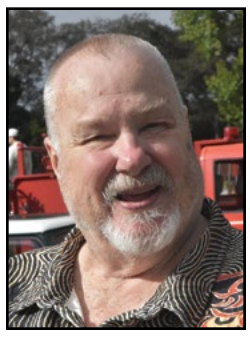

Asked Saturday, September 26, at the Coffee, Cops and Cars event

BLAKE SMITH, Oakland Avenue
A 2006 Ford F-150, I remember that it guzzled gas and the massive fuel tank cost me $150 to fill up.

CONSTANTINE MOURATIDIS, Sheridan Avenue
I had a '67 Pontiac Firebird in candy apple red that a friend sold me for $5000 Canadian. Luckily I didn't hurt myself in it, and decided to sell it for $2000 more six months later.

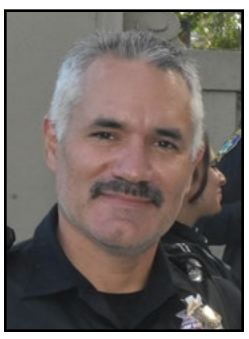

MICHAEL COWLES, Montclair
I wanted a muscle car, but my parents told me, "Why don't you buy that man's Edsel down the street?" I got my first 1958 Edsel for $300. I remember taking it to my first drive-in movie, Planet of the Apes, in 1968.

DAVID KUO, Porsche Cayenne owner
My first car was a blue 1986 Ford Mustang. Unfortunately someone T-boned me as I was coming off 280 and totaled it.

JODI CORNELL, PPD Police Commander
Mitsubishi Mirage. I remember it was the weirdest brown color and was highly functional.

BRIAN CASTILLO, PPD Detective
I had a light blue 1991 Geo Metro. It was great. I rode that thing all the way into the ground. It only had one cylinder working out of three when I traded it into the dealership.

The Question Man asks a prescient question each week at an unannounced location.

Join me in supporting Measure GG

Editor:

The best antidote to screen usage that I can think of is recreation. It is hard to be on a cell phone when you are chasing a soccer ball, blowing bubbles in the pool, or attempting to make a basket. The good news is that we live in a community that prioritizes recreation. Our Piedmont Recreation Department provides all sorts of programming for kids and adults, and helps organize amazing community events like Food Truck Fridays, Movies in the Park, and our beloved Harvest Festival. The not so good news is that we are falling behind on maintaining the very parks, fields, and facilities where these amazing recreational activities take place. Our city employees are working hard with limited funding to prioritize increasingly costly maintenance so that residents can continue to engage in the activities we all enjoy. It is estimated that local Measure GG would provide an additional $1.5 million for the City of Piedmont to help pay for essential services and facilities. Please join me in supporting what we like best about living in Piedmont, please join me in supporting Measure GG.

PBF urges Piedmont residents to vote YES on Measure GG

Dear Editor:

Piedmont Beautification Foundation (PBF) strongly urges all Piedmont residents to vote YES on Measure GG. During our September meeting, PBF Trustees and Advisors engaged in a thorough and thoughtful discussion regarding the City's financial future. Former Mayor Bob McBain, current Chair of the Budget Advisory and Financial Planning Committee (BAFPC), and Mayor Betsy Andersen joined us and provided essential insights into the proposal. Several local realtors also contributed their perspectives, ensuring a well-rounded conversation on the measure. Following this discussion, our Trustees voted unanimously to endorse this modest, necessary increase in the City's Real Property Transfer Tax.

PBF was founded during a period when the City's resources were significantly constrained, and we recognize that the City Council must always prioritize public safety and emergency services. Unfortunately, when budgets are tight, "quality of life" projects are often the first to be underfunded or deferred. The BAFPC has been transparent: Piedmont faces a long-term gap between the costs of maintaining our current infrastructure and available revenue. Without action, the outlook for these vital community programs remains bleak.

The proposed increase to the Transfer Tax is a responsible, forward-thinking solution. This is a one-time assessment collected only upon the sale or transfer of property. Even with this adjustment, Piedmont's rates will remain lower than those of our neighboring cities. Please join PBF in voting YES on Measure GG to help preserve the community we love.

Sincerely,
–Patty Dunlap
President, PBF

Gratitude for the Piedmont Harvest Festival

Editor:

I love traditions. I can't help it, I just do. One of my favorite traditions is the Piedmont Harvest Festival, founded by Susan Hill and Bill Drum 28 years ago.

I remember my dear friend Susan Freeman, asking me one year: What are you going to make for the Harvest Festival? I hadn't thought about it.

Susan and I liked to make jam together every year. I had a Santa Rosa Plum tree in my backyard that was prolific. Susan and I would spend hours together, pitting, mixing, stirring. One year, Susan injured her arm from stirring so long.

My children grew up with the scent of jam cooking and witnessing the tense moment when the jam was just ready to pour into the jars.

Now it is my great joy to share jam-making with my 4-year-old granddaughter, Blaire. In July, Blaire and I made strawberry jam; she cut most of the strawberries with her child's plastic paring knife. She watched me add the sugar and lemon juice and stir the strawberries until soft and running. Blaire played with her mother, Libby, and the Littlest Pet Shop figures from her mother's childhood, as I jarred the jam.

I am grateful to Susan Hill and Bill Drum for starting the Harvest Festival 28 years ago and continuing the tradition for so many years. I know it's a lot of work for the volunteers who run the event.

Fall in Piedmont wouldn't be the same without the edibles contest, the scarecrow contest, a band in the park, food trucks, Farmer's Market (generously sponsored by Village Market) and wonderful booths (like the one sponsored by the Piedmont Beautification Foundation), not to mention the good, old-fashioned carnival games.

If you missed the 2026 Harvest Festival, you must go next year. It's going strong and better than ever.

Endorsement for Adam Hundt

Editor:

As an engineer and Piedmont resident since 2009, I value leaders who approach complex problems with curiosity, discipline, and evidence-based decision-making. That is why I support Adam Hundt for Piedmont City Council.

Adam brings a fresh perspective and a fresh face to the Council. His education is exceptionally well suited to public service: he holds an MBA, a master's degree in Engineering, and a master's degree in Public Policy. This combination gives him the technical expertise, financial understanding, and policy perspective needed to evaluate Piedmont's challenges thoughtfully and comprehensively.

Adam brings a systematic approach to governance, along with an open and collabora-

What Post readers want from the next City Council

As the City Council election approaches, Piedmont Post readers are paying close attention. In a sample of responses from Piedmont Post readers, nearly all, 31 of 33, or 94%, said they plan to vote in November, and 55% said they planned to attend or watch the League of Women Voters candidate forum on Tuesday, Sept. 29. More than 70% of respondents were over 50, a long-tenured and deeply invested local voter base.

Readers were asked to pick the three most significant issues facing Piedmont. Five rose to the top: public safety, infrastructure funding, school quality, housing development and city spending.

Public safety led the list, cited by 52% of respondents. Readers pointed to pedestrian hazards, traffic enforcement and police staffing. "We do not have enough police service officers. This should be a priority," one resident wrote. Another described "so many near misses with pedestrians and drivers failing to stop."

Close behind, at 48%, was funding for infrastructure and aging facilities. Residents described potholes, drainage problems, neglected street trees and deferred maintenance across town. "The city has so much deferred maintenance, and we need a source of funding so that it can be addressed," one resident wrote.

School quality ranked third at 45%. School governance is decided in a separate election, but several readers asked council candidates to keep up the long-standing cooperation between the city and the school district on shared facilities.

Housing development was named by 42% of readers, driven by state housing mandates and the proposed development in Moraga Canyon. Many were concerned about wildfire evacuation, traffic and the loss of open space in Blair Park. "The Moraga Canyon development will be one of Piedmont's most consequential land-use decisions in decades," one resident wrote. Others took a different view: "We need to build more housing to avoid state penalties."

City spending rounded out the top five at 33%, and another 21% chose city and school taxes. Several readers questioned the proposed increase to the real property transfer tax on the November ballot, Measure GG, and asked for more financial transparency. Another asked candidates directly, "How do you control spending while providing the high level of services Piedmont is known for?"

With nearly every respondent planning to vote, City Council candidates face an attentive electorate looking for clear, fiscally responsible answers on safety, streets and housing.

The Piedmont Post received 33 responses to its online questionnaire Sept. 24-28. Respondents could select up to three issues.

Adoptable Dog of the Week

By Jessica McDevitt

Clara the Cane

Clara is a two-year-old Cane Corso mixed breed. She is initially wary, but once you have gained her trust, she is very sweet and turns into a 70-pound lapdog. Clara is very dog-friendly and would love to join a home with another dog or two. She needs experienced adopters who will understand her sensitive nature and can give her the time and support she needs to feel safe.

If you are interested in meeting Clara, go to Oakland Animal Services' website, type her name into Adoptable Dogs, and complete an adoption questionnaire.

For more information about adoption or how to temporarily foster a puppy or dog, contact Piedmont resident Jessica McDevitt at jessicamcdev@gmail.com.

Adoptable Cat of the Week

By Quinn White

Adopt Misha through Cat Town.

She is beauty, she is grace, she is Misha. At 15 years old, this lovely lady knows how to appreciate the finer things: a warm heating pad, a cozy lap, and eating dinner with a friend nearby. While she can be shy when meeting new people, after a few visits, your friends will be her friends, too.

Give Misha a comfortable place beside you and plenty of head scratches, and she'll settle right in. This beautiful Siamese mix loves being brushed, and will happily head-butt you to ask for more attention. She still makes time to bat at her wand toy, too.

As a senior, Misha will really sparkle in the care of someone who enjoys making life extra comfortable. Arthritis, early kidney disease, constipation, hearing loss, and some cognitive changes mean her adopter will want to give her a cozy routine that helps her feel her best. That includes a monthly arthritis injection, supplements, and a special diet. She's also eligible for Cat Town's In It For Life hospice adoption program, which offers lifelong financial support for qualifying veterinary care.

Easygoing and wonderfully companionable, Misha is spayed, vaccinated, microchipped, and FeLV/FIV negative. Learn more at www.cattownoakland.org or email adopt@cattownoakland.org.

Newest residents welcomed at New Families Night

Piedmonters celebrate New Families Night on the Community Hall patio.

By Jay Russell

New Families Night took over the Community Hall patio Friday night, kicking off a busy weekend of events in and around Piedmont Park. At 5:30 p.m., new residents came to meet other new neighbors and to mingle with school and city elected officials.

Dozens of new Piedmonters showed up, affixed a name tag and took the challenge of completing a "meet your neighbors" bingo card by talking to other folks at the get together. Squares on the bingo card included: "went to PHS" and "Is still an A's fan," as the ice breaker activity tasked kids and adults with a fun way to meet people.

City Communications Officer Echa Schneider worked the swag table giving away new Piedmont-branded apparel and fun toys to those with completed bingo cards.

Mayor Betsy Smegal Andersen was joined by City Council members Tom Ramsey and Jennifer Long at the event. Their presence showed new residents one of the benefits of living in a small town: accessibility to elected officials.

City Council Candidate Adam Hundt was also on hand, getting to know residents and embedding himself in the culture of the city.

"It was wonderful to meet families new to Piedmont," said Hundt. "Great schools, parks and recreation, and a friendly community were mentioned as reasons for moving to Piedmont. Residents commented that given the age of Piedmont homes, replacing outdated electrical wiring with energy efficient systems is an issue that is top of mind.

Just yards away, city employees were setting up a large inflatable screen for the movie in the park event. Families brought blankets and sat in front of the screen as barefoot kids ran through the grass while waiting for darkness to fall to view the Disney/Pixar film Elio.

On the Piedmont Park bridge another public offering was in full swing, put on by the Scout Council. Scout leaders instructed kids to use a bow to shoot padded-arrow at targets floating in mid-air.

Chelle Putzer serves lemonade and baked goods at the New Families Night on Friday, September 25.

Attendees of the New Piedmont Families Night enjoyed a full gamut of entertainment options Friday night, showing the best of what Piedmont offers its residents.

Movie in the Park night was just a hop, skip and a jump away from the New Families Night.

Piedmont Scouts set up an archery target in the park Friday night.

Tyler Petit

where he and his family live, and he is excited to save a little over two hours a day on his commute. His shifts in Brentwood will also be one hour shorter, giving Petit more time to spend with his family.

"I've been contemplating transferring out here to work in my own backyard for several years, and it's obviously a hard decision to make considering how involved I am with our community. But, at the end of the day, it's about my family, future career opportunities, and minimizing my commute time," said Petit.

Officer Petit is well known in town for his hard work and affable aplomb. Petit's friendly disposition has made him a beloved peace officer, and his presence will be missed by many. Locally, Petit may be most famous for the annual Coffee, Cops and Car Show he directs every year and helped start in 2018. His good-nature and attention to detail have also made his Tyler's Tuesday Tips videos well liked on the department's social media channels.

Petit has been awarded eight California Highway Patrol 10851 pins for recovering stolen cars and completed his Master's degree in April of 2025. Petit aspires to be able to use his degree in the future to promote and get off-street detail and to utilize his customer service skills and management skills to a higher level.

In the new department, Petit will have to start by working patrol in his own community, and will have to get used to new police protocols in Contra Costa County. His career in law enforcement started here in Piedmont on April 4, 2018.

Piedmont Police Department officers Tyler Petit (left) and Hugo Diaz deliver Valentine's cheer to participants in PPD's You Are Not Alone (YANA) program.

Petit talked about how working in Piedmont has made him a more well-rounded officer.

Working for this department has given Petit the knowledge of how to take a case from beginning to end.

"Working for Piedmont, I've been able to take my cases from step A to Z because we have the time and the training to solve them. We can all be investigators here, write our own warrants, and develop leads through our city's awesome technology that gives us a trail to follow. This is great experience that not all patrol officers in larger agencies may receive, that's typically done on the detective level. I'm just so thankful to have learned all I did, and for receiving all of the support from our amazing team of dedicated officers," he said.

On his final day of service, the goodbyes will be hard for everyone, citizens, Petit and his coworkers. Since he made his plans known to the department, word has spread rapidly. Petit has been stopped on the street by acquaintances and even complete strangers wanting to thank him for his service.

"The love and support I've received from the community members and their kind words just made me feel so appreciative of working for this city. I truly know that I was supported. People liked the kind of officer I am, and that matters most to me," Petit told the Post.

PEF launches Giving Campaign

By Bindu Lokre, Brook Meakins and Ellie Somers

School drop off was awash in purple and white on Tuesday, September 22, as the Piedmont Education Foundation (PEF) kicked off its 2026-2027 Giving Campaign. Teachers, administrators and parents lined the curbs, cheering on students, welcoming families, and celebrating the start of PEF's biggest annual campaign supporting our schools.

"It takes ALL of us" is this year's theme, led by co-chairs Bindu Lokre, Brook Meakins and Ellie Somers. "Maintaining a standard of excellence and driving future innovation requires our collective commitment," said Lokre. "The only way our schools will continue to thrive is if everyone pitches in."

PEF Chair Bridget Schreiber echoed the importance of community support. "We are so grateful for all this community does to support the bedrock of Piedmont, our schools. Every gift counts and helps ensure our teachers and staff have the resources they need to help our kids thrive."

Make a Giving Campaign gift at PiedmontEdFoundation.org/donate. Families who give before November 1 will receive a purple yard sign as a thank-you for supporting our schools.

PMS Musical Frozen JR. coming in October

By Amy Moorhead

Piedmont Middle School presents Frozen JR. October 23-25, based on the 2018 Broadway musical. The show features all of the memorable songs from the animated film, with music and lyrics by Kristen Anderson-Lopez and Robert Lopez, plus five new songs written for the Broadway production.

A story of true love and acceptance between sisters, Frozen JR. expands upon the emotional relationship and journey between Princesses Anna and Elsa. When faced with danger, the two discover their hidden potential and the powerful bond of sisterhood. With a cast of beloved characters and loaded with magic, adventure, and plenty of humor, Frozen JR. is sure to thaw even the coldest heart!

Frozen JR. is 75 minutes, which includes intermission, and is appropriate for the entire family. Thinking Outside the Classroom

Who gets to shape science?

By Michelle Rodriguez and Claudia Bustos

When we picture science, we often picture expertise. A lab. A credential. A specialized instrument. Someone who knows more than we do. Children absorb that image too. Long before they choose a science class or imagine a career, they are forming ideas about who does science, whose knowledge counts, and whether they can see themselves in it.

But science has never been an individual pursuit. Knowledge develops through observation, testing, discussion, disagreement, collaboration, and exchange. And it is shaped by something else too: our values, our lived experiences, and our cultures. At The Lawrence Hall of Science, we call this people-powered science. Expertise takes many forms. A biologist, engineer, farmer, artist, educator, parent, or culture bearer may approach the same question differently. People living in a community may recognize change before it appears in a dataset. They see a creek drying up, a neighborhood getting hotter, or the food available nearby beginning to change. Bring those people together and even the questions can change.

For children, that opens up a different relationship with STEM. Science becomes less about being the person who already knows the answer and more about noticing carefully, asking questions, sharing what you know, listening to someone who sees something differently, testing an idea, and changing your thinking. At The Lawrence, we want children to meet the people behind the science. In our lobby, they encounter Auntie Dottie, an Ohlone matriarch sharing knowledge about harvesting acorns rooted in this place across generations. In Future of Food, designer and entrepreneur Mónica Martínez introduces visitors to alternative proteins such as mealworms. These are not side stories. They show children that knowledge comes from people, communities, histories, and experience.

And with great science comes great responsibility. Alongside "How does this work?" we ask: Who does this affect? Who is missing? Who gets to help decide? Perhaps that is one of the most important STEM identities we can help a child develop: not simply I can do science, but I have something to contribute. Their questions belong. Their experiences belong. Their curiosity belongs. Science is people powered because science is something we build together. And every child deserves to know there is a place for them in that work. At The Lawrence, we want families to experience that together: asking questions, meeting the people behind the science, and recognizing that their own voices belong in the conversation too. We look forward to welcoming you.

The Lawrence Hall of Science is UC Berkeley's public science center, connecting research, education, and public engagement to help people understand and shape the world around them. From our home in the Bay Area, our work reaches classrooms, educators, families, museums, and communities through exhibitions, programs, K–12 curriculum, professional learning, partnerships, and educational resources used across the country and around the world.

Families explore The Lawrence's People-Powered Science lobby, where an exhibit developed with Ohlone youth shares cultural knowledge and shows how science is shaped by people, place, and community. The exhibit highlights Auntie Dottie, a matriarch of the East Bay Chochenyo-speaking Ohlone people, as a community science hero.

Linda Beach Playfield: 333 Linda Avenue
Tuesday, October 6: Archery, Fencing, Flag Football

Try (it) Out Tuesdays are a great, free way for girls+ to develop their leadership skills, boost their self-esteem and try a new sport. No matter their skill level, girls+ will have the opportunity to try various hands-on activities, meet the coaches, ask questions, and learn about local opportunities. Try out three different sports at each event. This time, archery, fencing and flag football drills and demonstrations will take place from 5:30-7:30 p.m. The Food Truck Mafia will be providing a food truck at each event.

Tilden Merry-Go-Round
Tildenmerrygoround.org
Central Park Drive & Lake Anza Rd, Berkeley; 559-1004

The carousel is open weekends 11:00 a.m.-5:30 p.m. Take the kids to ride the merry-go-round in Tilden Park which has been going round since 1911. The little lads and lassies will love riding their favorite ceramic horseys, unicorns, frogs, and ostriches around and around. Stay for a full afternoon of fun at the picnic benches. The cafe serves Fenton's ice cream, hot dogs, burgers, sandwiches, and beverages to fuel the excitement.

Pumpkin Patch open for business

By Jay Russell

The Wildwood Dads Club opened up their pumpkin patch in the parking lot of Coaches Field on Saturday, September 26. A herculean effort required 10 volunteer parents and eight kids to unload 13,000 pounds of pumpkins and 3,600 pounds of hay on opening morning.

The pumpkins were delivered in the middle of the night, true to the lore of fairytales, and the Wildwood Dad volunteers got started at 6:00 a.m. to move more than eight tons of Halloween fun into position. The patch already has 28 varieties of pumpkins to choose from and four more styles are en route.

The dads are hoping to smash the fundraising record again this year since they are able to open a week earlier giving them five weeks of sales.

"Several dads showed up even though they weren't signed up, we had a huge opening morning, probably one of our best ever," said Fischer.

Fischer and Derrigo are pleased to see the support from Wildwood parents with 79 different volunteers already signed up to work the patch. The club is excited that 10 TK parent volunteers are already participating in this year's patch.

Superintendent Search Survey

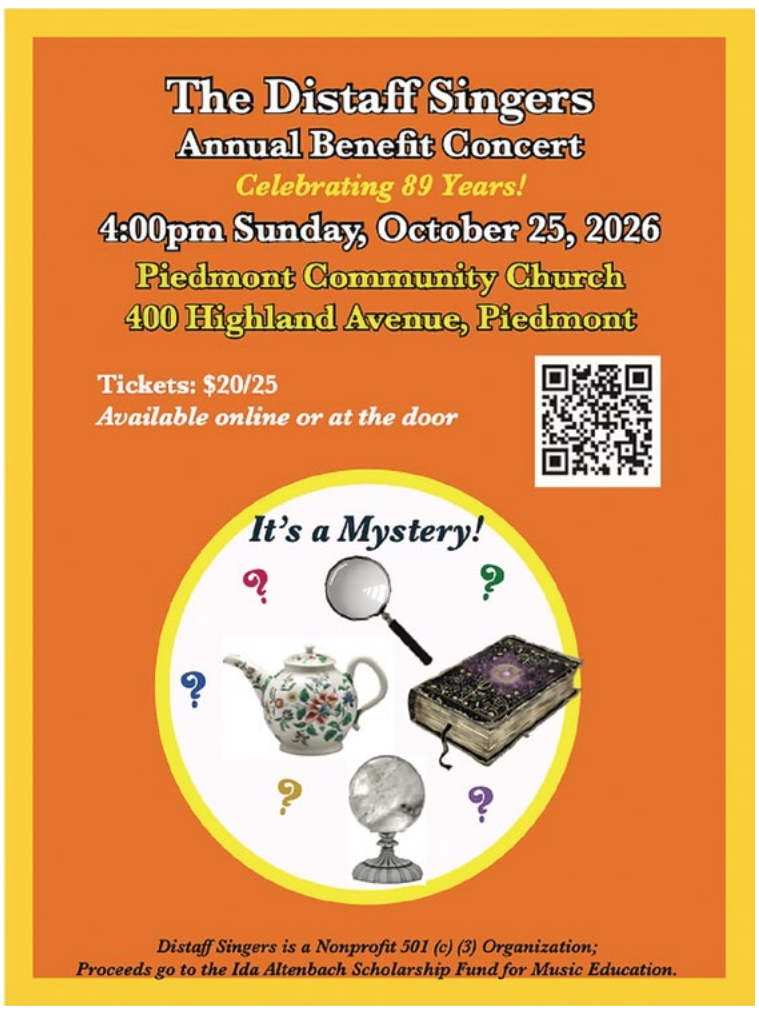

Piedmont's Board of Education is asking residents to help with the selection of the next school superintendent. To ensure this is a collaborative and inclusive process, the Board is providing an anonymous online survey and encourages participation.

The Piedmont Unified School Board is in the process of conducting a search for the District's next Superintendent. Leadership Associates, an executive search firm, was selected to advise the Board in this important process.

This is an opportunity for students, staff, parents, and community members to provide input on the qualities and priorities they would like to see in our next superintendent. The survey opened September 25 and remains available through October 7 at 4:00 p.m.

The survey asks a couple of open response questions such as "What do you see as the major challenges which will confront our new superintendent?" The survey also contains ranked lists of characteristics and qualities desirable for the next superintendent.

See Surveymonkey.com/r/WTL3ZYP for details.

Subscribe to Street Sweeping Email Updates (https://lp.constantcontactpages.com/su/2tJcrMR/streetsweepalerts) to get reminders about upcoming street sweeping dates. The Piedmont Public Works Department sends out the weekly schedule to this list every Sunday during street sweeping season.

Street sweeping tips for residents

To help Piedmont's Department of Public Works keep the streets free of leaves during the fall and winter months, residents are asked to observe four rules:

1. Do not put branches in the street, even small branches! They damage the street sweeping equipment.
2. Do not sweep debris from your yard into the gutter – sweep only leaves that fall naturally into the street.
3. Sweep leaves into narrow rows outside the flow line of the gutter. Do not put them in piles. The street sweepers cannot pick up piles of leaves effectively.
4. If you want to rake your leaves, you can now add them to your weekly unlimited green waste cart. If you don't have enough room in your cart, free compostable bags are available at City Hall to place with your green cart on garbage day. Do not bag them and then empty the bags on the street on sweeping day. Compostable bags are also available from Republic Services (1-800-320-8077) for a fee.

Boys' Water Polo blasts Jets 14-6

By Jonathan Comeaux

The Highlanders' boys' water polo team got the job done against the visiting Encinal Jets at the Piedmont Pool on Thursday, September 24 in a 14-6 victory. PHS led 12-1 to start the third quarter before rotating out its usual starters, which is a testament to their quality with the Jets entering the match with an 8-1 record.

"Encinal's program is on the up and rising with really good coaching and a lot of club players. So, I'm really proud of the way we executed what we've been working on the last couple of weeks," coach Rik Krumins said.

Piedmont has now passed the midway point of its season, holding a 6-6 overall record with seven matches left in its regular season. It was a strong defensive display for the Highlanders on Thursday night against Encinal. It's something coach Krumins has been looking to instill in his group this season.

"We've been working on lane defense, counter attack, and knowing when to get to our spots. It really comes out of our defense; we had a game plan to get in the lanes, be aggressive, and be ball hawks. That's something we've talked about all season long," Krumins said.

"Our defense has gotten a lot better; we were a little all over the place on defense or know when to drop. We've progressed a ton and have become a lot better. We still need to work on our shot blocking, but other than that, we're going to be ready to go for WACC and NCS," sophomore goalie Dylan Jerez mentioned.

In water polo, solid defense turns into offensive output. Junior Henry Stein is at the head of that, turning counter attacks into goals.

Staff Photos

Henry Stein scores from a 5-meter penalty shot against Encinal.

Goalie Dylan Jerez gets his arm on a ball for a save against Encinal.

"It starts with the defense. We're getting the steals, and my goal is to counter out of that and lead our offense down the pool. I'm supposed to be the first one down the pool and being like a quarterback to see what's there," Stein said.

Match Recap

It was a dominant first quarter with Piedmont leading 5-0 through the opening seven minutes. Stein opened the scoring after 52 seconds, then Jack Dahling scored two minutes later when cleaning up his own shot that rebounded off the post. After that, Stein scored after drawing a 5-meter penalty shot with 3:14 to go, and then scored again on an assist from Raffi Banin with 1:58 remaining. Graham Smith then assisted Rylan Patty with 29 seconds left.

Encinal scored its first goal 40 seconds into the second quarter, but Piedmont added two more goals in the second to give themselves a 7-1 lead at halftime. They scored via Patty with 4:20 on the clock, and then Jerez hurled a long assist to Stein one minute later.

PHS poured on five more unanswered goals in the third quarter to take a commanding 12-1 lead. Patty assisted Smith at the 5:44 mark, then Stein assisted

Girls' tennis team tops Bishop O'Dowd

By Jonathan Comeaux

Piedmont High's girls' tennis team split its last two matches at the Corey Reich Tennis Center to bring its record to 7-3 overall. After falling 5-2 to Marin Academy on Wednesday, September 23, the squad turned around to beat Western Alameda County Conference rivals Bishop O'Dowd 4-3 for a critical league win.

Their win over O'Dowd gives Piedmont a 2-0 record against league competition, giving them a major lift toward winning a second straight WACC title.

"We split our last two matches but beat our archrivals Bishop O'Dowd. We did so by winning all three of our doubles matches in straight sets. O'Dowd beat Marin Academy earlier this season, so this is a big win," said coach Jim Landes.

PHS only won one match at singles, which was Faith Chin at the No. 2 spot in three sets. After falling in the first set by a narrow score of 5-7, she followed up with dominant wins in the second and third sets, 6-1, 10-1.

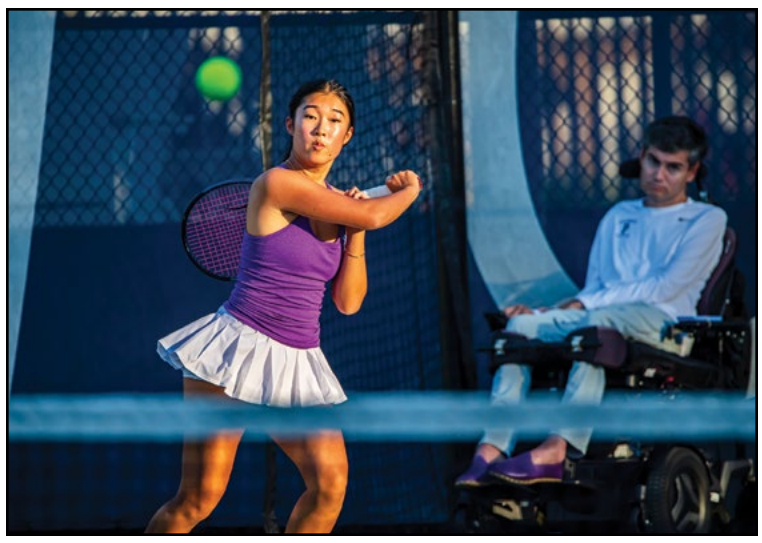

p. Staff Photos

Faith Chin had a critical win at No. 2 singles in Piedmont's league victory over Bishop O'Dowd.

"Faith won a tough match against the heavy hitting Ayla Akcaoglu. Faith lost a close first set after having a good lead but rebounded winning the second set and the tiebreak very decisively," Landes said.

Girls volleyball team splits league matches

By Jonathan Comeaux

Staff Photos

Maika Ting had 17 kills against Encinal and 16 kills vs. Bishop O'Dowd.

Piedmont High's girls' volleyball team split its last pair of matches against Western Alameda County Conference competition, beating Encinal 3-0 at Binks Rawlings Gym on Tuesday, September 22 but losing 3-1 at Bishop O'Dowd in Oakland the following day.

The pair of results brings PHS' record to 12-8 overall and 1-2 in league. Their overall win total officially marks the program's most wins since 2017 when the team went 16-8 and got a No. 7 seed in the North Coast Section playoffs.

It was a strong couple of matches for junior outside hitter Maika Ting who had 17 kills against Encinal and 16 kills vs. O'Dowd.

3-0 over Encinal

Piedmont swept the Jets by scores of 25-21, 25-20, 25-14.

Both teams traded points in the first set with six total lead changes. Encinal held a 20-19 lead, but PHS finished with the final five of seven points, including two kills by Maika Ting, an ace by Mia Bechtel, a block by Charlotte Bailey, and a set-clinching kill by Izara Dando.

In the second set, PHS took a 3-2 lead and never relinquished their advantage, extending the lead to 10-2 with three kills by Ting, two aces by Bechtel, and individual kills by Dando and Bailey. Encinal cut the deficit to 19-17, but Piedmont closed out with six of the final nine points. During that stretch, Lucia Dorsey logged two kills and two blocks, while Nora Trombi and Dando also scored from spikes.

After both sides traded points to a 4-4 deadlock, Piedmont scored seven of eight points to take an 11-5 lead. Encinal cut it to 11-9, but PHS ran their lead up to 19-11, and closed out with six of the final nine points – once again.

Final stats: Fiona Olsen had two kills. Ting had 17 kills, one block and five digs. Bailey had three kills, one block and four digs. Dando had six kills. Sofia Meyer had six kills and one block. Nora Trombi had one kill, six digs and seven assists. Olivia Stevens had three kills, one ace and 14 digs. Dorsey had six kills, two blocks and one dig. Allyson Huynh had two aces, 19 digs and six assists. Corina Vora had two aces, 14 digs and 14 assists. Hazel Schaeffer had two digs. Bechtel had three aces, three digs and eight assists. Sarina Hill had three digs and one assist.

3-1 loss to O'Dowd

Piedmont opened the match with a 25-21 win, but conceded the following three sets by scores of 25-18, 26-24, 25-22.

Final stats: Olsen had two kills, one block and two digs. Ting had 16 kills, one block and four digs. Bailey had four kills and two blocks. Huynh recorded two aces, 21 digs and five assists. Vora recorded 10 digs and 22 assists. Dando had three kills. Meyer recorded seven kills and six digs. Trombi recorded four kills, one block and two digs. Bechtel had nine digs and 12 assists. Stevens recorded two kills and eight digs. Dorsey recorded five kills, three blocks and four digs. Schaeffer recorded two aces and six digs. Hill recorded two aces, two digs and two assists.

Tuesday vs. Encinal

Piedmont played its second match against Encinal on Tuesday, September 29. See next week's Post for match details.

NEXT UP

Piedmont (12-8 overall, 1-2 league) hosts Castro Valley tomorrow, October 1, at 6:30 p.m. in Binks Rawlings Gym.

Libero Allyson Huynh had two aces, 19 digs and six assists against Encinal, to go along with two aces, 21 digs and five assists in the match with O'Dowd.

Sofia Meyer had six kills vs. Encinal and seven against Bishop O'Dowd.

Flag football beats Mt. Eden with fourth quarter rally

By Jonathan Comeaux

Piedmont High's flag football team claimed a come-from-behind 18-6 win over Mt. Eden on Thursday, September 24 at Witter Field. The Highlanders scored all three of their touchdowns in the fourth quarter after trailing 6-0 in the first quarter.

"There was no reason for us to be scoreless going into the fourth quarter. Our team needed some time to get it together, but we didn't collapse, and that's a win itself," coach Beth Black said.

Piedmont got its first touchdown on an interception returned for a touchdown by Kate Tong with 9:31 left in the fourth. Mt. Eden's offense relied on stretch runs toward the sidelines, and running back passes from those plays.

In the fourth quarter, the Highlanders adjusted, leading to the defense reading it as it happened.

"I was playing outside. They were repeating the same play a lot and were sending their blockers out wide. I figured out if I step around their blockers, I could grab it. We definitely watched and learned," Tong said of the play.

Mafi scored a near 40-yard touchdown run with 4:15 left in the game, dodging multiple defenders on her way to the end zone.

"We called snake and I knew I wanted the ball. I knew I had to leave the game knowing I did well on both offense and defense. I got the ball, saw my blocks, and kept running until the whistle," Mafi said.

It's worth noting that Piedmont was credited with a controversial 25-12 loss to Mt. Eden earlier in the season on September 1, where the Monarchs' varsity squad mistakenly played PHS' junior varsity team. That result means Piedmont still holds a 6-7 overall and 5-3 against Western Alameda County Conference competition. PHS is disputing the result, but still hasn't gotten a decision from league officials.

"The loss is still there, there hasn't been a ruling, and they still have that point on us. That stings a lot. I've written to the league and we still don't know what the ruling will be," Black said.

By Jonathan Comeaux

Piedmont High's football team suffered a 31-17 loss to Moreau Catholic in Hayward on Friday, September 25. The result brings the Highlanders' record to 1-4 as they enter a bye week.

Despite the loss, it was a strong offensive day for three players with more than 100 yards each as they returned from injuries.

Senior running back Rehan Mumtaz logged 128 rushing yards on 18 carries, while junior running back Vaha Mafi made an outstanding season debut with 111 rushing yards and one touchdown on 10 carries. Senior receiver Diego Hurwitz had five receptions for 102 yards, and junior receiver Mason Gray had five receptions for 55 yards and a touchdown.

Piedmont will return from their bye week to play their first Western Alameda County Conference Mission Division game against Arroyo on Friday, October 9.

Game Recap

Piedmont scored with a 24-yard field goal on its first drive of the game, a nine-play, 74-yard series. It started with a 19-yard carry by Mumtaz on a reverse, followed by a 12-yard run by Mumtaz. They converted a 3rd-and-3 with a 25-yard catch and run by Hurwitz to the 11, but PHS couldn't convert a 3rd-and-6 at the seven, leading to a field goal by Emanuelson.

PHS forced a punt on Moreau's ensuing possession and drove 78 yards to the Mariners' 15, but stalled out on a pass to the end zone on 4th-and-15. The home side responded with a five-play, 85-yard touchdown drive that concluded with a 44-yard catch and run up the middle to go up 7-3 midway through the second quarter, which remained the score at halftime.

In the second, Piedmont got down to the Moreau 15, but couldn't push the ball further, turning over on 4th-and-17 at the 22. They forced a punt and got to the Mariners' 17 in the late minutes, but missed on a 34-yard field goal in the final seconds.

The Mariners poured it on in the third quarter with 17 more points to take a commanding 24-3 lead into the fourth, and then scored on a touchdown series after recovering an onside kick to make it 31-3.

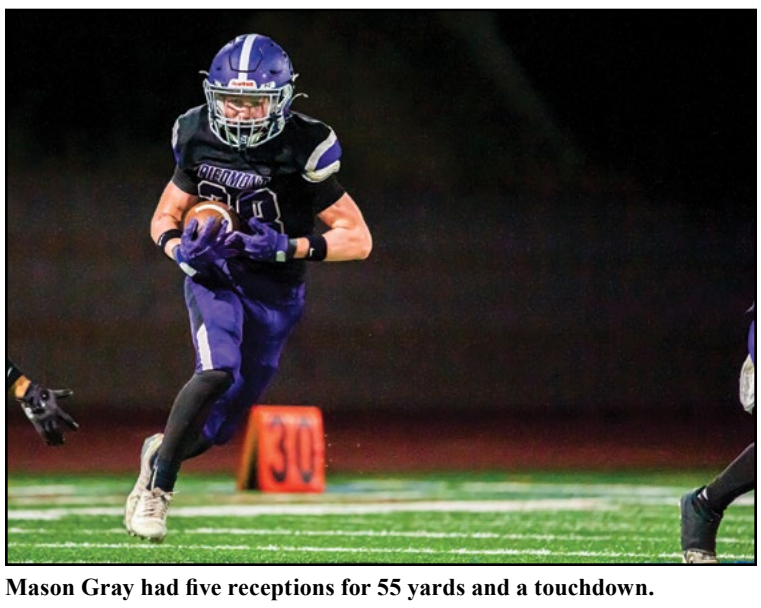

Mafi got Piedmont back on the board in the fourth quarter with a 58-yard touchdown carry up the gut, where he broke two tackles before making his way down the field.

Piedmont's final touchdown came on a 10-play, 78-yard drive. It started with a 20-yard carry by Mumtaz, while Emanuelson converted a 4th-and-3 at the Moreau 40 with a five-yard scramble. On 2nd-and-6 at the Mariners' 18, Emanuelson found Gray on a crossing route for the touchdown.

Final stats: Emanuelson completed 14 of 33 passes for 195 yards and one touchdown. Mumtaz had 128 rushing yards on 18 carries. Mafi had 111 yards on 10 carries and one touchdown. Hurwitz had five receptions for 102 yards. Gray had five receptions for 55 yards and a touchdown.

JV Highlanders hold off Mariners for 3rd straight win

By Lev Kuluva

The Piedmont Highlander JV football team traveled to Hayward on Friday, September 25 looking to secure its third consecutive win as it faced the Moreau Catholic Mariners. PHS got the job done, claiming a narrow 21-15 victory.

Moreau Catholic opened the scoring after starting its first possession at its own 40-yard line. The Mariners moved downfield and connected on a pass over the middle for a touchdown before adding the extra point to take a 7-0 lead.

However, the early score did not hurt the Highlanders' spirits. Fierro returned the following kickoff to Piedmont's 40-yard line, and a combination of short passes and runs moved the Highlanders into Moreau territory. Quarterback Gio López then connected with Fierro on a 30-yard pass near the goal line, but Moreau forced and recovered a fumble on the next play.

Halfway through the second quarter, Diego Garcia jumped a quick out route at the 37-yard line and returned the interception for a touchdown. It marked the second consecutive game in which Piedmont opened its scoring with a pick-six. Ben Gerber added the extra point to tie the game at 7-7.

Piedmont's defense then forced a punt on fourth-and-28 after a key sack from Hildreth pushed Moreau back to its own eight-yard line. Hildreth returned the punt to the Mariners' seven, and after Joe Logwood gained four yards, Hildreth ran in the touchdown. Piedmont converted the two-point attempt to take a 15-7 lead into halftime.

Will Dietrick opened the second half with a 51-yard kickoff return to the Moreau 34. Piedmont drove to the 11-yard line before another forced fumble gave the Mariners possession. Moreau capitalized on the turnover, using a combination of short passes and runs to move downfield before a 30-yard reception set up the tying score. The Mariners then converted the two-point attempt to make it 15-15.

Dietrick answered with another strong return, and Piedmont again moved into Moreau territory, but the Mariners' defense held and forced a turnover on downs. Piedmont's defense responded with key stops of its own, including a pass breakup from Lev Kuluva on a deep fade.

Heading into the fourth quarter, Moreau had the ball near its own 40-yard line. A sack from Havea helped force fourth-and-10, where Piedmont's defense came up with another crucial stop.

Just two plays later, Dietrick broke free for a 60-yard touchdown, giving Piedmont a 21-15 lead. The extra point was unsuccessful, leaving the Highlanders' defense with a six-point lead to protect.

Moreau made one final push, driving as far as Piedmont's 45-yard line before Gael Fierro intercepted a pass to end the threat. After Piedmont picked up the first down it needed, Hildreth took a knee to seal the Highlanders' third consecutive victory, 21-15.

Piedmont now enters a bye week before its first league game.

ing in the first quarter, but a failed conversion gave them a 6-0 lead. After back and forth possession, PHS put itself in position to score in the second quarter, but turned over on downs at the Monarchs' 12 with 1:53 left in the first half.

Mt. Eden got down to the Piedmont nine with 5:30 left in the third quarter, but turned over on downs with a seven-yard pass to the two on 4th-and-goal. The Monarchs intercepted a pass on PHS' next drive and had 1st-and-goal at the 11, but turned over on downs, once again.

Mt. Eden started the fourth quarter at its own 25 after another trade of possession. After gaining 10 yards, Tong jumped on Mt. Eden's pass to take an interception 35 yards to the house to knot the game up at 6-6 after a missed one-point conversion.

PHS' defense then forced a punt on Mt. Eden's next drive. After Edie Elmquist hit Agatha Filha Gama for a big gain to midfield, that's when Mafi broke her 40-yard touchdown run to give her side a 12-6 lead with 4:15 remaining after another missed conversion.

The Highlanders then gained possession at the Monarchs' 16 after they turned over on downs. On 2nd-and-goal at the 10, Tong scored again with a run down the left side for Piedmont's final touchdown.

Harvest Festival

At the edge of the street next to a large selection of food trucks, Village Market set up tables with fresh fruit and vegetables. Alongside were special flower, cheese, and honey shops. The honey shop was especially unique because of the glass case of bees, which attracted many attendees.

There were also pop-up informational booths from the Fire and Police departments. They each gave out trinkets for kids and informational items for the parents. The Fire department also made available one of its engines so kids could sit inside and have photos taken.

Many people sat on the grass to eat their food and listen to live music from the 25th annual Jazz Festival. The festival opened with J Fleser and the Jaywalkers and featured performances from the Piedmont High School Jazz Band, the Clifton Street Regulars band, and a closing set by What Might Have Been.

Scarecrow Alley returned, featuring phenomenal creations made by students at Beach, Havens, and Wildwood elementary schools. The pieces were auctioned off to benefit the schools. A crowd favorite was the Jack Skellington scarecrow made by Beach's 2nd to 4th graders. It towered over all others.

In front of the Community Hall, tables were set up for residents to learn more about the city. A few of these tables featured Piedmont trivia, election information, and an apple cider press.

The Piedmont Education Foundation Kids Carnival took over the Community Center parking lot. Kids made their way to play all sorts of games, including bean bag toss and ring toss. Parents and kids lined up to grab a snow cone, a crowd favorite. Camp Augusta made an appearance at the Carnival, hosting its famous Gaga Ball. The carnival benefits Piedmont's three elementary schools.

This year's Harvest Festival had it all, with families and friends spending time together having fun.

Coffee, Cops and Cars

The police booth offered kids a chance to spin a wheel for a prize and to meet the men and women that protect the city.

"Clearly the contact list is growing every year," said Petit. "There's always new people that move to Piedmont that are interested in joining, and throughout the Bay Area. So it felt good, it's really nice to have seen everyone come out again."

Around 85 muscle, exotic and classic cars showed up to be a part of the show out of an RSVP list of 115. Hundreds of people, young and old, attended the event which took over one lane of Highland Avenue.

Many right hand drive cars attended the show, such as a nearly mint 1967 Triumph Herald. Vintage car phones, and colorful leather interior could be seen inside some of the sweet rides. Other racecars on display were all business, sporting only one seat inside of a roll-cage.

Some old-timers brought their lawn chairs to comfortably sit on the edge of Piedmont Park for car talk with admirers. Little kids had dreams come to life as the Lamborghini doors careened towards the sky for them to sit in the driver seat.

In its second year of attendance the East Bay Slot Car Club brought their Trailer Track, a remote controlled racetrack with 12 cars capable of racing at once. Tom Warren brought the ultimate Hot Wheels track twenty feet in length with miniature grandstands, bridges and S-curves, that was busy all day. The race action was fun for anyone with a heartbeat, but kids commanded the controls with great excitement and reluctance to end their turns.

A taco truck was on hand to feed hungry car admirers as were the Scouts of Troop 15 with a huge selection of baked goods for sale.

Many stories were exchanged, and friendships were forged making the 8th annual event another major success for the Piedmont Police Department.

San Francisco Opera presents Mary, Queen of Scots now through Oct. 4

By Allyson Aleksey

San Francisco Opera is presenting Scottish composer Thea Musgrave's Mary, Queen of Scots at the War Memorial Opera House, bringing the 1977 opera back to San Francisco in a new production by director and designer Stewart Laing.

"I am thrilled to have my opera Mary, Queen of Scots return to San Francisco Opera this fall," Musgrave said in a press release. "I have always felt it to be the cornerstone of my operatic repertoire. It is also very close to me personally as I am a woman, a Scot and lived for several years in Paris."

The production, which opened September 20, is a co-production with English National Opera. Italian conductor Clelia Cafiero is making her San Francisco Opera debut leading the San Francisco Opera Orchestra, with soprano Heidi Stober in the title role.

Musgrave's opera centers on the young queen's struggle to maintain power in Scotland. Three men in Mary's life, including her half-brother James Stewart, second husband Lord Darnley and future third husband the Earl of Bothwell, each seek to influence or control her reign.

The opera combines scenes of political unrest and court intrigue with more intimate moments, including Mary singing a lullaby to her infant son, the future King James I.

Musgrave's opera premiered at the Edinburgh International Festival in 1977. Its U.S. premiere followed in 1978, and Musgrave herself conducted the West Coast premiere at San Francisco Opera's Spring Opera Theater in 1979.

Laing's production, first presented by English National Opera in 2025, places the story in a contemporary setting and highlights sectarian violence in modern Scotland. D.M. Wood and Mimi Jordan Sherin are the lighting designers, and Colm Seery is the choreographer.

Stober returns to the role after performing Mary at London's Coliseum in 2025. British baritone Thomas Mole makes his American debut as James Stewart, while San Francisco Opera Adler Fellow tenor Thomas Kinch portrays Bothwell. Christopher Sokolowski makes his company debut as Lord Darnley.

Baritone Hadleigh Adams portrays the musician and secretary to the queen, David Riccio; bass David Soar is Cardinal Beaton; current Adler Fellow baritone Olivier Zerouali is the Earl of Morton; tenor Chance Jonas-O'Toole is the Earl of Ruthven; bass-baritone Philip Skinner is Lord Gordon; and Mary's four eponymous ladies-in-waiting are performed by Adler Fellows Sadie Cheslak (Mary Seton), Sofia Gotch (Mary Beaton), Mary Hoskins (Mary Livingston) and Alexa Frankian (Mary Fleming).

Mary, Queen of Scots continues through October 4 at the War Memorial Opera House. For tickets and more information, visit sfopera.com.

SFMOMA hosts K-pop dance party Oct. 15

By Allyson Aleksey

The San Francisco Museum of Modern Art (SFMOMA) will turn its rooftop sculpture garden into a Korean-pop dance party Thursday, October 15, featuring live performances.

"Rooftop Radio: K-pop" will take place from 5:30 to 9 p.m. in the sculpture garden on the museum's fifth floor. K-pop, short for Korean popular music, encompasses a range of musical styles but is known internationally for elaborate choreography and highly visual performances.

The genre has become a major part of American pop culture, with groups such as BTS and BLACKPINK reaching the U.S. mainstream through chart success, sold-out concerts and appearances on American television.

SFMOMA's event will feature sets by Bay Area DJs CAZU, AyumiPlease and Peter Lo, along with performances by local K-pop cover groups Groobeu, K-Pop-Up, Homeground Dance and ECLIPSE.

Sassi Fran, a San Francisco-based drag performer and co-founder of K-Pop-Up, will host the performances.

The evening also will include a photo booth, toploader decorating and activities from Kloud K-Pop, a South Bay K-pop store. Food and drinks will be available for purchase.

The 21-and-over event is part of SFMOMA's Rooftop Radio series, the museum's after-hours events combining live music, DJ sets, food, drinks, and late access to museum galleries.

Visit https://www.sfmoma.org/event/rooftop-radio-k-pop/ to purchase tickets.

LINES Ballet launches 2026-27 national tour

Tour includes SF dates in November with the San Francisco Symphony

By Allyson Aleksey

Alonzo King LINES Ballet has launched its 2026-27 national tour, bringing four works by San Francisco choreographer Alonzo King to audiences across the country, with San Francisco performances scheduled in November.

The tour features LEGACY, King's recent collaboration with jazz bassist, vocalist and composer esperanza spalding; Ode to Alice Coltrane, a tribute to the composer, pianist and spiritual leader; Ma Mère l'Oye (Mother Goose), set to Maurice Ravel's score; and Deep River, King's collaboration with Grammy Award-winning vocalist Lisa Fischer and jazz pianist and composer Jason Moran.

The company has several San Francisco performances scheduled this season, including a November 19 through 21 collaboration with the San Francisco Symphony at Davies Symphony Hall. The program will feature world premieres of two ballets choreographed by King to Claude Debussy's Prélude à l'après-midi d'un faune and Aaron Copland's Appalachian Spring. James Gaffigan will conduct the Symphony.

"For more than four decades, touring has been an essential part of the life of LINES Ballet," King, the company's founder and artistic director, said in a press release. "Dance is a language that transcends geography and speaks directly to our shared humanity. Every community we visit brings a different energy and perspective to the work. That exchange between artists and audiences is an essential part of why we tour."

Visit www.linesballet.org to purchase tickets.

The tour will showcase four signature works from Alonzo King's repertoire.

The Musical Gourmet

The 3 M's

By Joseph Gold

Good things often come in groups of three. If you are into literature, it's the Three Musketeers. If you are into religion, it's the Holy Trinity. For me, it is memories, menus, and music.

My wife and I arrived in the Swiss city of Geneva, a very beautiful and clean city on the shores of Lake Geneva with its stupendous water fountain. Being in Geneva brought back some memories. During the opening festivities of the Los Angeles Music Center the USC Orchestra was invited to participate. At that time, I was the orchestra's associate concertmaster, seated prominently at the front of the orchestra near the audience. Our soloist for that occasion was the noted American tenor Brian Sullivan. During the rehearsal, Sullivan took his place standing next to me and facing the audience. I was very impressed by his voice and stage presence. During the middle of the aria, he turned around and sang directly to me. I have never heard anything so beautiful in all my life from a singer. Sullivan took me under his wing and helped direct my musical career. He also gave me excellent advice.

A few years after this the news media announced the death of Brian Sullivan. His body was discovered in Lake Geneva. It was never determined if he died because of an accident or perhaps by suicide. His voice and personality remain vivid in my memory. Simply stated, his was the greatest voice I ever heard in person.

As Rocky Marciano once said: "The bigger they are, the nicer they are."

After Geneva, my wife and I took the train to Northern Italy, where we stayed in the home of our friends Tiziano and Rafaela Micci. Mrs. Micci has a very successful political career. She was the mayor of the city of Orino.

Mr. Micci is able to see humor in almost anything. He is a gourmet of high status and knows the history of just about every recipe. One of his friends is the noted Italian chef Sergio Borzetti.

Tiziano prepared a special dinner for us which featured the northern Italian specialty of polenta. In the United States polenta is known as grits. It is also the national dish of Romania.

You can prepare polenta in two different ways. I always cooked the corn grits over a high heat. Tiziano prefers to cook polenta very slowly. In preparation, it takes an hour at low heat, and he stirs it every five minutes. Polenta lends itself to a variety of presentations. It is marvelous by itself or served as a side dish with vegetables or meats of any kind. We enjoyed the polenta as a side dish and it was served with a slow cooked beef roast, accompanied by a slightly sweet vegetarian sauce. The polenta was topped with Gorgonzola cheese or Taleggio cheese. It is advisable not to cook the polenta with olive oil or Parmesan cheese. When you prepare polenta, use your imagination. It is so adaptable that you can use practically any side dish. Success is guaranteed.

A memorable Italian dinner featuring classic polenta and slow cooked beef. It was delicious and quite easy to prepare.

Three of us attended a concert in an old church very near Orino. It was impressive to see that the church was filled to overflowing with an audience of perhaps more than 300 people in attendance. Andrew Jolliffe is the impresario of a very successful concert season. It is obvious that he has a very efficient staff to assist him. This particular concert featured the first trumpet of the La Scala Orchestra, Francesco Tamiati, and the excellent local organist, Margherita Gianola Mascioni.

We arrived early and were fortunate to hear maestro Tamiati warming up. It was thrilling to hear his agile technique, articulation, and fine tone quality.

The program began with the famous Trumpet Voluntary composed by Jeremiah Clarke. As the program progressed, the artists took turns in performance. I enjoyed the playing of both; however, I wished that this famous trumpet player took the opportunity to really show off his abilities. This criticism is minor when you consider the quality of the concert. After the concert, impresario Jolliffe gathered his staff, the two featured musicians and the former mayor of the city of Orino for a photograph.

Seeking information for my article, I spoke with the impresario. He is a very gracious Englishman, who resides locally in Italy. He said that he would be very happy to engage me as a violin soloist for his festival next year. It turns out that my European pianist lives just a few minutes away from the concert hall. How convenient is that?

I thought it over and I am convinced that I have a perfect program for his audience. The line from The Godfather movie came back to me: "Make him an offer he can't refuse."

I think that I should not refuse his offer.

This photo was taken after Saturday's concert. On the left is the successful concert impressario Andrew Jolliffe and members of his staff surrounding the two featured musicians. On the right is Rafaella Micci (the former mayor of the Italian city of Orino.) It was kind of like a victory lap after the successful concert.

Michael Stehr* Art History Lecture

A Friday night Extravaganza! Art historian Michael Stehr presents a spirited, illustrated 50-minute lecture exploring Michelangelo's work in his home town of Florence, Italy. At the age of 29, he would put the finishing touches on his David, likely one of the most recognizable sculptures in Western art. As he moved through his forties, this sculptor, painter, architect, and poet of the High Renaissance would continue to yield sculptural masterpieces and explore the art of architecture at San Lorenzo, the parish church of the Medici family. In 1534, he moved to Rome and only returned to Florence after his passing almost another thirty years later. Doors open at 5:30 p.m. Please bring $20 (cash only) per person to pay for entrance at the door.

Saturday, October 10, 7:00 p.m.

Oakland Ballet's Luna Mexicana showing Oct. 30 & Nov. 1 at Paramount Theatre

Oakland Ballet's Luna Mexicana is showing at Paramount Theatre next month.

By Allyson Aleksey

Oakland Ballet Company performs Luna Mexicana, a ballet celebrating Dia de los Muertos and traditional Mexican dance, on October 30 and November 1 at the Paramount Theatre in Oakland.

Luna Mexicana is an original work by Oakland Ballet Company's Artistic Director Graham Lustig and is one of the Bay Area's most celebrated events honoring Dia de los Muertos, or Day of the Dead, a holiday celebrated and observed mostly in Mexico and Latin America.

Lustig's production features a young woman whose ancestors "dance" back to life in the form of teetering skeletons, skirt-swishing ladies and a bride and groom duet. In 2018, Oakland Ballet Company premiered Viva la Vida, co-choreographed by Lustig and Martín Romero of Ballet Folklorico Mexico Danza. The dance celebrates the life and artistry of iconic Mexican artist Frida Kahlo, and is now included in annual presentations of Luna Mexicana.

The program is presented in two acts with an intermission, and features a selection of Mexican contemporary and folkloric dance as well as music curated by Lustig. Past performances have included the Aztec ensemble Nahui-Ehekatl and Co. and dancers from Ballet Folklorico Mexico Danza.

Audience members of all ages are encouraged to attend in Day of the Dead costume. Luna Mexicana is a family-friendly event and ideal for audience members ages 7 and up.

Tickets are available online now. Visit https://oaklandballet.org to purchase tickets.

Stagebridge looks to the future by building a Legacy for the Arts

By JoAnne Tobias

When people think about the legacy they want to leave, their thoughts may turn to family, an alma mater, a hospital or another large institution. Stagebridge hopes to add another possibility: local arts organizations.

Founded in 1978, Stagebridge is the longest-running performing arts organization for older adults. As it approaches its 50th anniversary, the Oakland nonprofit is thinking about its own future and that of the East Bay arts community.

This fall, Stagebridge will bring together local and national arts organizations and community partners, including Women's Foundation California, Oakland Interfaith Gospel Choir and Faith in Action, among others. Stagebridge's Legacy Event will explore how lifetime and planned gifts can sustain the arts while connecting organizations, supporters and advisors to share knowledge about legacy giving.

For Stagebridge board member Tracy Gary, a nationally known philanthropic and legacy advisor, the opportunity includes broadening how people think about legacy. Universities and hospitals are often top of mind in long-term charitable planning, she says, while smaller organizations that enrich their communities can be overlooked.

Stagebridge knows firsthand what a legacy gift can make possible. Like many arts nonprofits, it weathered uncertainty following the COVID shutdown. Today, Stagebridge is rebuilding and growing, thanks in part to a generous legacy gift and bequest that has helped expand programming, develop partnerships and strengthen its arts and legacy education.

The Legacy Event will feature performances by Brenda Marie Turner, Terrence Kelly and Brian Young, along with personal stories, a panel of people who have made or are considering legacy gifts, and advisors who can answer questions. Participating organizations will introduce their work and share resources.

"We all love the arts, and we want to create more of a partnership and network," Gary said. "This is the first of our partnership events."

The goal extends beyond giving to one organization: to build a stronger network of East Bay arts groups and broaden the conversation about sustaining the community's cultural life.

A founding partner of Unleashing Generosity, Gary has helped start more than 27 nonprofits, served on 32 boards and authored Inspired Philanthropy. Her forthcoming book, Redesigning Nonprofits: Catalysts for a Stronger Democracy, explores ways to strengthen the nonprofit sector and will be available at the Legacy Event.

For those ready to take a next step, Gary suggests speaking with a financial advisor or using a free will-planning tool such as FreeWill, then having an attorney review the documents.

"The arts are saving us right now," Gary said. "Think about the organizations that have brought joy to your life. Think about the impact you want your legacy to have."

Piedmont Seniors celebrate 30th anniversary

By Jake Lannon

On Wednesday, September 23, the Piedmont Seniors group celebrated their 30th anniversary at the Community Hall. Group members and city officials came together to celebrate this significant milestone with cake, food, and welcoming conversations.

The event began with members signing in at a table outside and enjoying tea and coffee while chatting before the festivities began. Around the room were scrapbooks with old newspaper clippings referencing the group and photos of outings. Some of the scrapbooks dated back to the founding of Piedmont Seniors and how it came to be.

The first speaker was Piedmont historian Gail Lombardi, who spoke about Piedmont's beginnings in 1907 and showed photos of what the city looked like. After Lombardi's presentation, attendees were treated to lunch from Ann's Catering, which served chicken sandwiches and salads along with other items tailored to guests' liking. After lunch a special Piedmont Seniors cake was cut and handed out to each table for everyone to enjoy.

The lunch gave everyone a chance to speak with city officials, including Fire Chief Dave Brannigan, Police Captain Chris Monahan, Police Officer Tyler Petit, City Administrator Rosana Bayon Moore, Recreation Director Chelle Putzer, Recreation Supervisor Paula Cooper-Tipton, and Recreation Supervisor Eva Phalen.

After lunch, Program Coordinator Janet Epstein offered a few words in honor of the group's 30th anniversary.

"It's really hard to come up here and believe that I've been doing this since I was 10. It's been 30 years since the beginning of the Piedmont Seniors in 1996," said Epstein.

She mentioned some of the 300 excursions the group has been on and honored the long-standing members in attendance. After her speech, she welcomed former Recreation Director Mark Delventhal to the stage after honoring him for his decision to help form Piedmont Seniors 30 years ago.

Program Coordinator Janet Epstein speaks to the audience about how great it's been to be a part of Piedmont Seniors for 30 years.

Mark Delventhal gives a speech on how happy he is to see Piedmont Seniors thriving.

Bill Fleck, the son of legendary Seniors leader Helen Fleck, reminisces about the fun he had driving the Piedmont Seniors to their excursions.

The crowd gives an ovation for all the speakers at the 30th celebration.

Dave Brannigan speaks with guest Sheila McCune.

Piedmont historian Gail Lombardi presents the history of Piedmont's beginnings.

"I feel like a proud parent today, or maybe grandparent. This program has always held a real special place in my heart, and it's hard to believe that it's been 30 years," said Delventhal. "I think one of the reasons this program is so special to me is it changes lives. It creates connection. It provides an additional community and support system for people, and a very important part of their lives. For the city's recreation department to be part of that, makes them feel great."

Delventhal ended his speech by thanking Epstein for her hard work on the program and dedication to making it into a community for many in the city. Bill Fleck came to the stage to say a few words in honor of his mother, Helen Fleck, and tell stories about how great Piedmont Seniors is. After Fleck, Phalen came to the podium to emphasize what everyone said before her and thank Epstein for her hard work on the program. The crowd gave one final ovation for the speakers and for themselves as they celebrate 30 years of community and connection.

Piedmont Seniors visit two San Francisco historic sites

The Piedmont Seniors took a recent excursion, crossing the Bay Bridge for two private group tours, one each of the San Francisco City Hall and the historic James R. Browning United States Federal Building Courthouse.

San Francisco City Hall – known as the "People's Palace" – is the magnificent Beaux-Arts seat of government for the City and County of San Francisco. Reopened in 1915 after the catastrophic destruction of its predecessor in the 1906 earthquake, its iconic dome stands 307 feet tall, making it 42 feet higher than the U.S. Capitol dome!

The building has witnessed profound historical moments, including the 1978 assassinations of Mayor George Moscone and Supervisor Harvey Milk, and hosted California's first same-sex marriages in 2004.

Speaking of marriages, the City Hall is a very popular venue for weddings, using its elaborate staircase as a backdrop. Several notable public figures and celebrities have been married at San Francisco City Hall, including Marilyn Monroe and Joe DiMaggio, Rosie O'Donnell and Kelli Carpenter, etc. On the morning of the Piedmont Seniors' visit to City Hall there were several weddings taking place, as well as a couple of quinceañeras.

After the City Hall tour the Piedmont Seniors then headed to Max's Opera Café, an upscale restaurant located in the heart of San Francisco's Civic Center, which offers classic American fare with an old-school feel and upbeat atmosphere.

After lunch the Piedmont Seniors then continued their tour in San Francisco by visiting the James R. Browning United States Courthouse, where they got an in-depth guided tour from John O. Tulloch, retired former Piedmont city clerk and former assistant city administrator.

This courthouse has been described as the second most beautiful public building in the United States and was described by Sunset Magazine shortly after its 1905 opening as "A Post Office That's a Palace." Today, this historic courthouse is the headquarters of the United States Court of Appeals for the 9th Circuit.

Built in the Beaux-Arts/American Renaissance style, builders used the finest materials and craftsmen to make the building an ode to Greek and Roman architecture. From stained glass skylights to marble columns, with Tiffany glass mosaics to redwood libraries, hand-carved sculptures to hand-tiled floors, the Browning Courthouse is an architectural masterpiece.

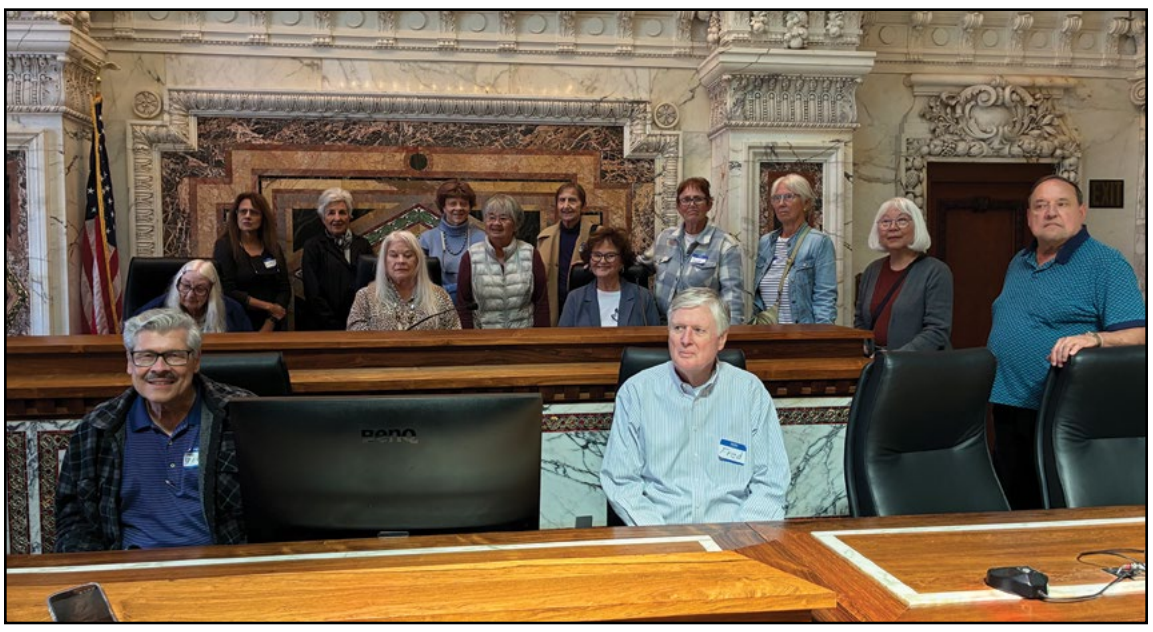

One of the true highlights of the visit to this building was a visit to Courtroom One, a most elaborate interior space. Originally designed as a trial court and renovated in the 1960s for use by the Court of Appeals, it features marble Corinthian columns and classical symbols of cast-plaster caryatids and cupids. Three ceramic tile mosaics adorn the arched panels. The bench includes Venetian glass motifs, while the wall behind features a decorative design from many colors of marble. It also has marble and plaster representations of 28 different varieties of California fruits and vegetables.

All in all, it was a fun-filled, very informative day for the Piedmont Seniors.

If you would like to find out more information about the Piedmont Seniors program, contact Janet Epstein, coordinator, at jepstein@piedmont.ca.gov or phone (510) 420-3070. The Seniors meet monthly on Wednesday mornings from 10 a.m. to noon at the Piedmont Community Hall, 711 Highland Avenue, Piedmont, in addition to going on monthly excursions throughout the Bay Area.

The MacMama

Computer tips and helpful suggestions, especially for people who are not entirely comfortable using their computers.

By Cookie Segelstein

Dear MacMama:

I know the new iPhones came out, and I have an iPhone 13 and I'd like to update it. The two that I'm the most interested in are the folding phone, or the bigger iPhone Pro. Can you give me an idea of what the differences are?

–Sal, Oakland

Dear Sal:

Yes, it's that time of year when Apple releases the new iPhone models. Apple has been talking about making a foldable phone for years, and this year, they finally announce the iPhone Duo. The two models that you mentioned; the iPhone 18 Pro Max and the iPhone Duo, really cater to different needs. You can order an iPhone 18 Pro Max or (smaller) 18 Pro now, and in many cases, you can just walk into one of the Apple stores and get one. They have several of the models in stock depending on how much storage you need or what color you want. There will be a non-Pro version of the iPhone 18 probably early next year. As far as the iPhone Duo, you can pre-order that starting on October 16 with availability starting on October 23.

Let's compare the two. First, the iPhone Duo is going to be quite a bit more expensive than the Pro Max starting at around $2000 for 256 GB in storage all the way up to $3200 for 2TB of storage. Compare that to the iPhone 18 Pro Max which starts at $1300 for 256 GB up to $2500 for 2TB. (The smaller 18 Pro costs between $1200 and $2400). The new Duo is made of premium titanium, while the iPhone models are still made with aluminum, which can tend to scratch easily.

Since you mentioned that you're interested in the bigger iPhone Pro Max, the screen size is 6.9 inches. Not quite pocket size, but if you have a thin case, you can fit it in your back pocket. I have the 18 Pro Max, and even with my wallet case I can stick it in my back jeans pocket. It's bulky, and I can't really sit down with it in my pocket, but I'm used to that size as I have had the max size since it was available. As in previous models, iPhone 18 Pro is smaller, with a 6.3 inch display.

It's the dual display of the Duo that really makes the biggest difference to user experience. The Duo has a 5.4 inch front display closed and 7.6 inch inner display open. Folded open, it's like an iPad mini, with more working space than any of the other models. It gives you the opportunity to have more than one app on your screen at a time, with the ability to drag things from one to the other. Also, Apple has claimed that users will be able to use an Apple Pencil on not only the big display but on the front display also. That could be a game changer for creatives that don't want to carry their laptop around but want the ability to quickly send sketches to clients and friends. While the iPhone 18 Pro and Pro Max still use Face ID, the Duo uses touch ID on the side button. And folded open, the Duo is quite thin, but thicker than the 18 Pro Max when closed.

The big new feature on the iPhone 18 Pro and Pro Max is the triple camera set up with variable aperture. Unlike previous iPhones, this one allows you to choose the aperture when taking a shot. While the Duo is no slouch with a 48MP dual fusion camera system, the Pro models blow it out of the water when it comes to photo specs. This is why I decided to get the 18 Pro Max.

The iPhone 18 Pro Max has up to 45 hours of video playback, and if you use the Duo closed, it almost matches that at 44 hours. But why would you keep that screen closed if you are watching a video? With the Duo's inner display, it's only 31 hours of video playback. These numbers are deceiving because often it depends on what other apps or processes are running on the phone. I have found Apple's claims of battery life not to be particularly precise, on phones, watches, and laptops.

So, who is the iPhone Duo best suited for? If you're a person who likes to have that newest thing, and don't mind paying a premium, and you don't need all of the camera features, then it's for you. If you want the features of an iPad and iPhone and one device, then it might be worth paying the premium cost for this new iPhone Duo.

Piedmont Seniors venture to wine country to tour historic castle

The Piedmont Seniors recently took an excursion to Calistoga to tour Castello di Amorosa, an authentically built, 14th century replica Tuscan castle-style winery, nestled in the hills in the heart of the Napa Valley.

On the way to the tour, the Piedmont Seniors made a short stop along the way to visit the historic Oakville Grocery, a wine country landmark since 1881. Adjacent to the grocery is the Oakville Wine Merchant, a 150-year-old Victorian house which not only is a museum but is also the setting for wine tastings. Then it was off to visit Castello di Amorosa.

Castello di Amorosa is renowned for its world-class wines made by a fourth-generation winemaking family that has been crafting fine wine for over 130 years.

After decades of researching and studying medieval castles throughout Europe, Dario Sattui began his 15-year building project in 1993. Today, experts consider the Castello an architectural masterpiece as it transports visitors to medieval Italy. The 141,000 square-foot Castello features: 107 rooms (each one of

One of the highlights of the Piedmont Seniors' tour was a visit to the winery's Great Hall. With its hand-painted Italian frescoes, and 500-year-old Umbrian fireplace, the Great Hall is the castle's most prestigious and most sought-after room for special events. It's one of the only rooms in the Castle with glass windows. The walls were hand painted by brothers Fabio and Elio Sanzogni, and it took them more than 18 months to complete the art. Each fresco was inspired by Tuscan medieval paintings. Pictured for the Piedmont Seniors are: Kelly Hope (left), Andre Brown, Greg Jurin, Sandra Ponce, Judy Wong, Gloria Wilmer, Piedmont Seniors Coordinator Janet Epstein, Jan Yager, Jim Ayotte, Sue Getreuer, Yorkman Lowe, Kristi Yager, and Lilly Guardia-LeBar.

During their winery tour, the Piedmont Seniors gathered in the Grand Barrel Room, located three levels below ground. It is 12,000-square-feet and has 14-foot tall ceilings and 40 cross-vaults with ribbing. The brick is hundreds of years old and imported from Europe. Walking on Wednesday

Little libraries, big connections on Wednesday Walk

By Dick Carter

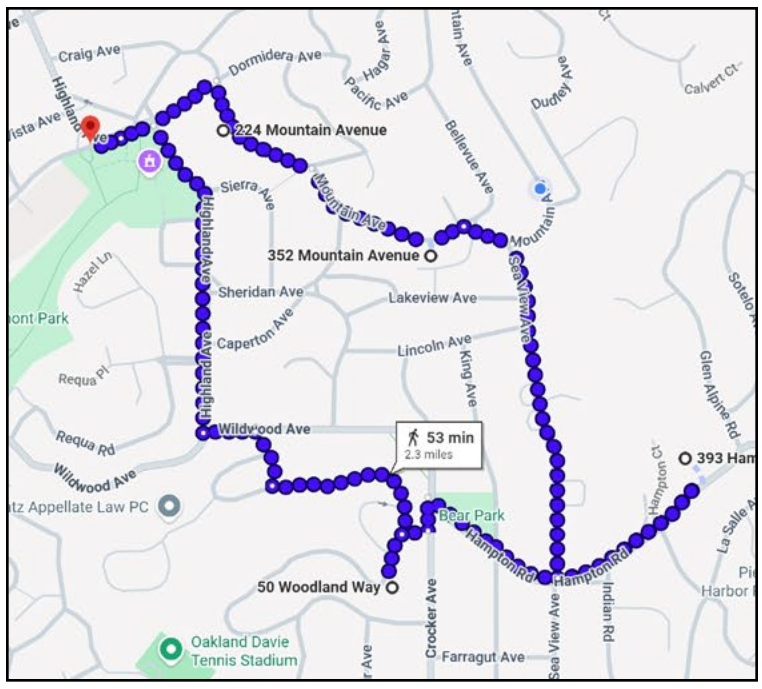

An autumn walk through Piedmont turned into a literary treasure hunt last Wednesday, showing how a shared love of reading can bring a community together step by step.

While last Wednesday was the warmest day of the week, weather was no obstacle for our Piedmont Recreation Department's Walking on Wednesdays group. A turnout of 51 walkers and six K-9 companions met at the Exedra to embark on our weekly outing on this crisp first full day of fall.

Since July, different participants have taken turns leading the weekly walks. This rotation has highlighted the varied interests and creativity of our members. Last week's route was designed by June Yee, who invited us to visit four little sidewalk book libraries scattered along a 2.3-mile loop through Piedmont's scenic neighborhood streets. Walkers were encouraged to bring books to swap or donate. Lois Price, who is currently building an ADU and looking to downsize her personal library, arrived with a generous bag of volumes to distribute along the way.

Before setting off, June offered a brief background on the sidewalk library movement. These small, weather-resistant boxes allow neighbors to take or leave books freely. Though informal book sharing has historical roots in older public reading initiatives, today's widespread sidewalk library phenomenon is remarkably recent.

During the late 19th and early 20th centuries, broad efforts emerged to widen book access regardless of income. Philanthropist Andrew Carnegie used his fortune to fund thousands of free public libraries across English-speaking countries. Several local landmarks, such as Oakland's Temescal Branch, originated as Carnegie libraries. The pioneers of today's micro-library movement often cite Carnegie's vision as a primary inspiration.

European precursors also paved the way. In Germany, artist-designed public bookcases began appearing in the 1990s. By 2002, German designer Trixy Royeck developed dedicated outdoor book exchanges. These early installations shifted reading away from formal institutions, establishing the informal, anonymous book swaps we see today.

The modern Little Free Library movement was sparked in 2009 by Todd Bol of Hudson, Wisconsin. Bol built a small wooden structure styled like a one-room schoolhouse, placed it on a post in his front yard, and filled it with books as a tribute to his mother, a passionate schoolteacher. The idea quickly captured public imagination. Partnering with educator Rick Brooks, Bol began promoting the concept nationwide. Their original goal was to surpass the 2,509 Carnegie libraries in existence—a milestone achieved by August 2012, when their initiative formally incorporated as a non-profit organization.

The movement's growth since has been remarkable. By 2016, over 50,000 registered libraries spanned all 50 states and 70 countries. Today, more than 200,000 registered locations operate globally across all seven continents, accounting for over 400 million

PIEDMONT FLIX FEST

Flix Fest to show The Grand Budapest Hotel on Oct. 8

By Gerry Gragg

One of the pleasures of movies is seeing one with friends, and then chatting about it when the lights come up. The Flix Fest meets on the second Thursday of each month and offers movies in a comfortable setting with lively discussion afterwards.

The Grand Budapest Hotel, written and directed by Wes Anderson and released to critical acclaim in 2014, is a comedy-drama displaying a wide range of cinematic effects to tell the story of an aging Eastern European hotel through a narrator cast as a writer visiting the hotel in its final days. In the opening scenes, the writer shares his belief that vivid thoughts and memories can't help but be shared. He begins to learn about the hotel in an interview with the current owner.

We are visually transported back in time through the clever use of miniatures in long-distance scenes that are barely noticeable, and varying aspect ratios. They used 1.37:1 for the 1930s, 2.35:1 for the 1960s, and 1.85:1 for the 1980s. Colors in various shades set the mood for the time period being filmed, with unusually rich detailed scenes require the viewer's full concentration to follow the storyline. Many scenes are perfectly symmetrical, creating visual pairings that emphasize the dialogue taking place between characters.

The principal character in this story is the hotel concierge, M. Gustave H., played to perfection by Ralph Fiennes. He reflects on his history with the hotel through whimsical satire, stylized pretension, and nostalgia to alter our perspective from our own current reality. F. Murray Abraham, as Mr. Moustafa, plays the current hotel owner, and is represented in flashbacks as the Lobby Boy, an immigrant fleeing political turmoil before being employed by M. Gustave H.

The storyline is linear and a straightforward portrayal of a wealthy dowager's 20-year affair with the Concierge and the conflicts arising from her desire to leave her estate to him if her death is caused by murder. The dowager's lawyer, played by Jeff Goldblum, is the center of the controversy involving a forged will fabricated by the dowager's son, Dimitri, whose role in the dowager's death leads to suspicion of murder. When the Concierge and Lobby Boy visit the dowager's estate for a reading of the will, Dimitri conspires to accuse them of her murder and has them arrested and thrown in prison.

Their escape from prison, aided by Lobby Boy's girlfriend, Agatha, and their confrontation with Dimitri unfold in a well-choreographed sequence that reflects the quirky disposition of the dowager's estate, which includes ownership of the Grand Budapest Hotel. Tragedy arrives in the final scenes with the deaths of the Concierge and Agatha, leaving the Lobby Boy as the surviving owner.

The Grand Budapest Hotel will be shown on Thursday, October 8 at the Piedmont Center for the Arts, 801 Magnolia Ave. Doors will open at 12:45 p.m., and the movie is free to anyone 18 and over. Our next movie is A Few Good Men, a 1992 drama to be shown on November 12 at 1 p.m.

Brace, balance, best friend:

A glimpse into the remarkable training of mobility assistance service dogs

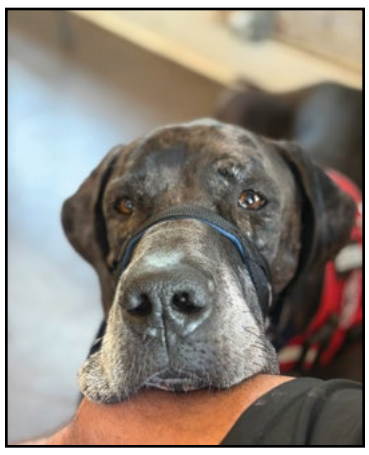

By Sierra Berrick

One of the most well-known types of service dogs is the mobility assistance dog. Organizations such as Canine Companions and Guide Dogs for the Blind are well known for training these amazing dogs, who can dramatically improve the quality of life for their handlers. But very few people understand the vast array of tasks these dogs are able to perform. Fewer still realize that people may qualify for mobility assistance based on their own health-related needs.

A well-known area of mobility assistance service dog training is balance and stability tasks. Counterbalance is where the dog provides physical support by walking with steady tension on a rigid harness handle, gently helping to guide the owner should there be a disturbance in their gait or balance. This can be used while walking on flat surfaces, but may be especially helpful when steadying a handler on stairs or while walking uphill. Mobility assistance dogs may also be trained to provide balance support as the handler moves from a seated to a standing position, or vice versa. In this case, the dog acts as a steadying point of contact or counterweight as the handler raises or lowers their body.

Although they are not as well known, retrieval and delivery tasks make up an important area of mobility assistance training. Dogs who are able to pick up dropped items may save their owners a great deal of discomfort or improve their safety. Fetching specific items such as a phone, water bottle, or even medication can be extremely important. Many mobility assistance dogs carry items such as medication or water bottles inside specialized vest pockets, but dogs can also be trained to carry specific lightweight items in their mouths for short distances.

Finally, certain independence-related tasks help handlers navigate the world more safely. Door and drawer operation means that a dog is trained to pull open doors, drawers, or cabinets using attached fabric pulls, and to close them again with a nose or paw. Dogs may also be trained to press buttons, such as those for automatic doors or light switches. Some may even be trained to pull a manual wheelchair short distances over flat surfaces or provide mild forward momentum on a gentle incline using a specialized harness. This can be essential if the handler is tired or not feeling well.

Great Danes may become excellent mobility assistance service dogs with their large size and docile personality.

Mobility assistance service dogs are truly amazing, with a vast array of useful tasks they may be trained to perform. Many handlers do not have visible disabilities like those requiring a wheelchair, but may struggle with conditions such as back pain or balance problems. Should you or someone you know benefit from one of these tasks, don't hesitate to reach out to a qualified service dog organization or trainer. With their help, your dog's new skills could be life-changing.

Seniors tour Castle

which is beautiful and distinct from the others), 8,000 tons of hand-squared stones, 8 levels (4 below ground), caves, courtyards, a meticulously hand-painted Great Hall, a drawbridge, moat, dungeon and torture chamber, a consecrated chapel, and one of the most impressive wine barrel rooms in the U.S., constructed with ancient brick Roman cross-vaulted ceilings.

Yet while this castle is so utterly impressive, the Castello is merely a backdrop to showcase some of Napa Valley's finest wines, and the Piedmont Seniors were given the opportunity to do a tasting as part of their tour. For those who do not imbibe, Castello also offered quite the selection of non-alcoholic wines.

Castello di Amorosa has 30 acres of vineyards surrounding its hand-chiseled walls, gates and guard towers, planted in Cabernet Sauvignon, Sangiovese, Malbec and Primitivo, which produce low yields and intensely flavored wines. The Castello produces hand-crafted Italian-style wines including Pinot Grigio, Pinot Bianco, and a Super Tuscan Blend, all made to pair beautifully with a variety of foods. Castello wines are sold only at the winery; they are not sold to restaurants or stores anywhere.

After the tour, the Piedmont Seniors then ventured to downtown Calistoga for a delectable lunch at Palisades Eatery, serving the Napa Valley since 1987. Palisades Eatery offers quite the lunch variety of sandwiches, salads, wraps, pizzas, and sides, each with an affordable price.

With the castle tour, the wine tasting, and such a wonderful lunch, it can be said that everyone had quite the fulfilling experience on this delightful day!

If you would like to find out more information about the Piedmont Seniors program, contact Janet Epstein, coordinator, at jepstein@piedmont.ca.gov or phone (510) 420-3070. The Seniors meet monthly on Wednesday mornings from 10 to noon at the Piedmont Community Hall, 711 Highland Avenue, Piedmont, in addition to going on monthly excursions throughout the Bay Area.

tive mindset. He is attentive to details, focused on understanding how decisions affect the broader community, and committed to weighing evidence and tradeoffs. He understands that good government requires defining problems clearly, listening to stakeholders, and implementing solutions that are effective, sustainable, and measurable.

Piedmont deserves a councilmember who can think long-term while remaining responsive to residents' everyday concerns. Adam's education, analytical approach, and collaborative spirit make him well prepared to help address infrastructure, fiscal responsibility, housing, transportation, and other interconnected challenges.

I am proud to endorse Adam Hundt for Piedmont City Council and encourage Piedmont voters to support his candidacy.

In support of Bill Reichle

Piedmont Post,

I'm writing in support of Bill Reichle for City Council. I had the privilege of serving on the Piedmont Education Foundation (PEF) board with Bill. He is thoughtful, kind, and genuinely dedicated to making Piedmont a better place. He has demonstrated his commitment to Piedmont by volunteering in many capacities and he always leaves organizations, and people, better than he found them. His experience working for UC Berkeley would bring valuable perspective to the City, and I believe he would do a great job listening to the concerns of Piedmont residents and thinking through the issues. His priorities are clear and sensible — public safety, fiscal discipline, and community engagement. We would be fortunate to have Bill representing us on the City Council, and I hope you will join me in voting for him.

Sincerely,

–Christine Wente von Metzsch

Strong boost for Nancy Beninati

Editor:

I am writing to support Nancy Beninati for Piedmont City Council.

I joined the Piedmont Police Department in 2014 and had the honor of serving as Piedmont's Police Chief from 2016 until my retirement in 2025.

I worked with Nancy on racial and identity profiling and police reform. As a Supervising Deputy Attorney General at the California Department of Justice, Nancy has extensive experience in law enforcement and public safety. I found her to be smart, thoughtful, and collaborative, and she was always willing to share her expertise and help our Police Department.

In 2020, Nancy and I presented together at a Piedmont community forum on police reform. She also joined me as my guest at a meeting of the Alameda County Police Chiefs, where she presented on racial and identity profiling. I saw firsthand her ability to bring her legal and policy expertise to important and sometimes difficult issues while working constructively with law enforcement and the community.

Nancy understands the importance of both public safety and strong community relationships. I believe her experience would be valuable on Piedmont's City Council.

I encourage Piedmont voters to vote for Nancy.

–Jeremy Bowers
Retired Piedmont Police Chief

Why I am voting for Adam Hundt

Editor:

It gives me great pleasure to highly recommend Adam Hundt for the Piedmont City Council.

Adam is a leader who understands the issues impacting our daily quality of life: safety, community spaces, and preserving our green environments. As a father with young children, he also recognizes long-term challenges, particularly the climate crisis. Adam knows every community must contribute to robust climate action by accelerating home and vehicle electrification and using public facilities for clean energy. These actions will boost our quality of life, improve property values, and secure a better future.

The city understands the climate work ahead. In 2025, the Planning Department created the Award for Sustainable Home Design and Construction. I was honored to be one of the inaugural winners for fully electrifying our home. However, there is much more to do. Adam will invigorate Piedmont's climate plan to help us realize these goals.

Please visit Adam's webpage (AdamHundt.com) and invest in Piedmont's future by giving him your vote.

In support of Bill Reichle

Editor:

We are writing in full support of Bill Reichle's candidacy for Piedmont City Council. As close neighbors, we have known Bill and his wife Julie for about 25 years. Bill is an extremely friendly, approachable person and a very good listener. He is a very honest, trustworthy person, and these qualities are what we look for in a candidate. His experience as a former Assistant Vice Chancellor at UC Berkeley demonstrates that he is a leader.

As a candidate for City Council, he is already hard at work finding out the issues that are facing Piedmont. If he is elected to City Council, we know that Bill will take his job very seriously. He will be a champion for public safety, fiscal prudence, and community engagement.

Bill is a great neighbor, and he will make an outstanding Piedmont City Council member. Come election day, we will definitely vote for Bill Reichle!

With our strong support,

–Wayne Leong, MD and Suzanna Chan, PharmD

engagement process: properly vetted plans for traffic improvements and pedestrian safety; wildfire-resilient design; safe emergency evacuation routes; and a financially feasible project that meets state housing obligations while integrating affordable and market-rate housing.

As a licensed architect with seven years on the Planning Commission working on Piedmont's Design Guidelines, and four years on City Council, I understand the technical and financial challenges of development. I know our obligation to meet state housing requirements while making sure city-owned land serves Piedmont's broader community needs. I will evaluate the proposed partner against the RFQ criteria, the Specific Plan, our fiscal realities, and community commitments. I will vote yes only if the agreement is specific, financially credible, and aligns with the MCSP.

Sunny Bostrom-Fleming

Several years ago, I placed an offer to purchase a home on Moraga Ave. The offer was accepted, subject to inspections, and they turned out positive. Then, two days before closing escrow, the house started to slide. Inside, the marble counters in the kitchen separated from the back wall. The hillside-facing walls separated from the hardwood floors. An independent engineer did an inspection and said this whole area is a mudslide area, and the proposed soccer field stadium will not work in this area.

I decided to run for City Council to make sure the word got out about the dangers of the soccer project and the mudslides. Finally, just before the final council vote to approve the soccer field on Moraga Ave, there was a mudslide, closing Moraga Ave for 2 days, as I had predicted.

We need massive community input to ensure that if this area is developed, the city aligns our history and our vision for the future, keeping our citizens, our children, our pets, and wildlife safe.

Bill Reichle
(ReichleforPiedmont.com)

The Moraga Canyon Specific Plan is part of the Housing Element mandated by the State of California for all cities. A few cities resisted their housing mandates and exposed themselves to litigation, fines, and penalties, including the loss of control over zoning decisions. One consequence of non-compliance is the state-imposed "Builder's Remedy," which allows developers to choose where and what to build without resident input. I am grateful to our city leaders for their determination to keep Piedmont in compliance.

The Specific Plan is a comprehensive vision developed with city staff leadership and considerable public input. The plan envisions design, landscaping, traffic circulation, pedestrian safety, wildfire mitigation, storm drainage, geological studies, financing, and other details. The plan is available for review on Piedmont's Planning & Building Department website.

The Specific Plan was used to issue Requests for Interest to prospective developers. If one or more developers express interest in this project, proposals and qualifications would be evaluated for adherence to the plan.

I am interested in ensuring a developer's financial viability and track record in delivering similar projects. My focus would be on public safety, traffic circulation, emergency evacuation, pedestrian and bicycle safety, and wildfire mitigation.

Nancy Beninati
(NancyforPiedmont.com)

I support creating new and affordable housing. Throughout my career at the Attorney General's Office, I advocated for equitable, accessible, and affordable housing. Where you live impacts so many aspects of your life — where you work and buy food, public safety, transportation, your friends and neighbors, and your schools.

At the same time, Piedmont is required to plan for hundreds of new homes in a city with little undeveloped land. Meeting that state housing obligation will require thoughtful planning and difficult choices. Any development needs to reflect both our housing obligations and the needs of the Piedmont community.

Before I could support a project, I would want to know that it delivers the required affordable housing, is financially and legally sound, and enhances the community. I would want clear commitments regarding infrastructure, traffic and parking, public safety, environmental and wildfire impacts, construction impacts, and preservation of open space where feasible. Most importantly, I would want a transparent process, clear performance requirements, and meaningful accountability if the developer does not meet its commitments.

We should approach our housing obligations thoughtfully and realistically, given Piedmont's limited land and the need to carefully consider how new development will affect our community.

Adam Hundt
(adamhundt.com)

Piedmont can benefit from new housing; it'll add to the tax base, increase diversity and enrollment in schools, and hopefully allow those who work in our schools, police, and fire departments to live in Piedmont. Such development must comply with state law and local building code. Planning should incorporate Piedmont residents' feedback.

To be approved, a developer must meet specifications outlined in the City's Moraga Canyon Specific Plan (MCSP), which accounts for impact to utilities, roads and pedestrian/bike pathways, stormwater drainage systems, and landscape. If elected to City Council, I will examine planning for AC Transit service and road traffic, especially given the use of Moraga Avenue as an escape route in an emergency evacuation. I will work to ensure noise levels are controlled in compliance with wildfire safety protocols, and to preserve Coaches Field and the Corporation Yard.

I will appropriately plan from a financial perspective. The MCSP notes that a "fiscal analysis found that the estimated annual, ongoing impact of the MCSP on the City's General Fund was neutral to slightly positive." Given taxes from housing development, revenues cover increased costs related to safety and facilities. That said, I will seek feedback from residents regarding funding options for housing development.

Harvest Festival Edibles Contest

By Jake Lannon

Piedmont's annual Harvest Festival has featured an Edibles Contest every year since its inception. The name embodies the festival's larger celebration. This year, the Harvest Festival celebrated 28 years of Piedmont-grown produce. The competition is held in the Community Hall, where the judges evaluated the submissions and determined their rankings.

This year, a total of 109 entries were submitted for the Edibles Contest. The Bill Drum Award, for the winner with the most blue ribbons, was awarded to the Slatoff family. Named after the co-founder of the Harvest Festival, the award is sponsored by Ace Garden Center.

The Sweepstakes Award went to the Slatoff Family for entering items in the most categories. The Slatoffs received a $75 gift certificate from the Piedmont Beautification Foundation. Blue Ribbon Award winners each received $5 gift certificates to Village Market.

The Susan Hill Award for Best Youth Entry was awarded to four-year-old Blaire Davis. The reward was a $30 gift certificate.

The city thanks Edibles Contest volunteers Lilla Wells, Alex Slatoff, Carolyn George, and Susan Hill.

Patty 30 seconds later. Patty scored with 3:26 left, followed by Smith scoring a 5-meter penalty at 2:54. Oliver Hurwitz made it 12-1 with 1:08 remaining.

In the fourth, PHS added two more goals. Travers Kemp scored at 4:48, while Smith assisted Colin Amen with 2:42 remaining.

Final stats: Stein had four goals, one assist, and three steals. Patty had four goals, one assist, and a steal. Smith had two goals, one assist, and one steal. Amen, Kemp, and Dahling had individual goals. Hurwitz had one goal and two steals. Banin had an assist and a steal. Jerez had 12 saves, one steal, and an assist.

shared books.

Not every neighborhood book box is officially affiliated with the Little Free Library organization, but the core philosophy remains identical: take a book, leave a book, share a book. There are no library cards, return dates, or fees—just community generosity in action.

Armed with this history, our group set off up Highland Avenue. We turned onto the 400 block of Wildwood Avenue, admiring the early autumn foliage of the Autumn Blaze Maples lining the street, their leaves turning deep burgundy.

We wound up Wildwood Gardens toward Woodland Way, reaching our first destination at 50 Woodland Way. This library was crafted to match the design of the home behind it. Walkers paused to browse, drop off donations, and examine the official Little Free Library plaque before gathering nearby for a group photo.

Retracing our steps along Woodland Way and past Crocker Avenue, we climbed Hampton Road to reach 393 Hampton. Nestled beneath a majestic redwood, this rustic wood-roofed box offered a selection of travel books that quickly drew eager readers.

Our route continued up Sea View Avenue to Mountain Avenue, where we visited our final two stops at 352 and 224 Mountain. Walkers made the most of these last stops, making final trades to stock up on autumn reading materials.

This was our last stop of the morning and also a chance to thank June for a fun and instructive walk. However, it was noted that there are more little sidewalk book libraries on the west side of town that can be explored on a future Wednesday walk with June.

Walking on Wednesdays meets every week at 10:30 a.m. at the Exedra (Highland and Magnolia Avenues). The program is free and open to all, and new walkers—along with their K-9 best friends—are always welcome. Registration is required. singles against O'Dowd, she was among the lone winners against Marin Academy. Huynh has been impressive as a debut varsity player, mostly appearing at the No. 3 spot throughout the season while also bumping up to No. 2 at times.

"I'm grateful to be on varsity and was surprised to play three singles. When I saw the singles lineup, I didn't think I'd make the order. But my teammates have helped me through, they have been really supportive," Huynh said.

4-3 win over Bishop O'Dowd

At singles, Chin was the only winner at the No. 2 spot with her three-set victory. Ella Ruthven fell 6-0, 6-2 at No. 1, Huynh lost a close 3-6, 6-1, 10-4 battle at No. 3, while Leela Sivakumar lost

6-1, 6-3 at No. 4.

At doubles, Emma Chan and Chiara Silvio won 7-6 (7-3), 6-2 at the No. 1 spot. Ella Thomasson and Mai Pham won 6-3, 6-2 at No. 2, while Layla Reed-Miguel and Amelia Oldrin won 6-2, 6-1 at No. 3.

Maddy Huynh split her matches against Marin Academy and Bishop O'Dowd. She's had a big impact on the singles lineup as a freshman.

5-2 loss to Marin Academy

Huynh won the first match of the day at No. 3 singles in straight sets, 6-2, 6-0. Sivakumar then fell 6-4, 6-1 at No. 4 singles. MA took a 2-1 lead when Reed-Miguel and Amalia Anglulo lost 6-4, 7-5 at No. 3 doubles.

Marin Academy claimed its third match at No. 2 doubles, where Thomasson and Pham fell 7-5, 7-5. Chin got Piedmont's second win at No. 2 singles in straight sets, 6-1, 6-2. However, MA got its clinching victory at No. 1 doubles, where Chan and Silvio lost 6-3, 6-2. Ruthven closed the day with a gripping three-set loss at No. 1 singles, 5-7, 7-5, 10-6.

Police investigation leads to a major arrest & seizure

By Jake Lannon

On September 24, Piedmont Police announced a significant update in a case that led to the arrest of multiple suspects and the seizure of illegally possessed items.

In August, Sergeant Kristina Foster conducted a traffic stop that led to the discovery of two firearms concealed inside the vehicle's engine compartment and the arrest of a suspect. Sgt. Foster continued to follow up on the investigation with members of the police department, leading to the arrest and a search warrant at the suspect's residence.

The department worked with the Oakland Police Department and California Highway Patrol Air Unit to safely execute the search warrant at the suspect's residence, where they seized guns, ammunition, and weapons. The suspect was taken into custody and booked at Santa Rita Jail without incident.

"This case is a great example of the work that continues long after an initial arrest, following leads, developing information, and working collaboratively with our law enforcement partners to keep our communities safe," said the Piedmont Police Department in a statement released on their Facebook page.

Confiscated items found at the suspect's residence.
